21 Ton Mineral Wagons In Stock And Shifting Fast!

accurascale

Stalwarts of the BR standard wagon fleet, the 21 ton mineral wagons (TOPS cods MDO and MDV) were unsung workers on the network from the 1950s all the way into the early '90s and once a familiar sight across the rail network.

accurascale

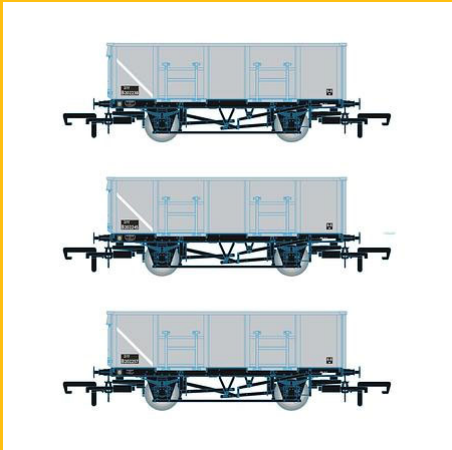

Following the very quick selling out of our first run of these wagons, never before offered in high quality, Ready-To-Run format, we are back with an all new run, with new running numbers and featuring the MDW variant for the first time.

accurascale

These wagons are now in stock direct with us, and currently landing with local stockists. Despite price rises from our competitors, we are able to keep these beautiful wagons at the same brilliant value as the first run, priced at just £74.95 per triple pack and 10% off when you order two packs or more direct!

New Announcement - ECC CDAs In OO Gauge

accurascale

Great news! Do to a deluge of requests from modellers, and to mark the recent withdrawal from service of the real wagons, we are delighted to announce an all new run of our beautiful CDA hopper wagons in the iconic English China Clay (ECC) livery as they first appeared in service in early 1988.

Can it get any more classic Cornwall than these? Join us as we look at the history of these icons of railfreight as well as our stunning models below!

History of the ECC CDAs

accurascale

As you can see in the photos above, our CDA wagons feature a wealth of detail and crispness which signifies 'The Accurascale Way'. A diecast chassis, brass bearings and 26mm pinpoint axles means smooth running and excellent performance on your layout.

Particular attention has been paid to the detail differences over the traditional HAA wagons these were based on, such as the equipment at the wagon end, holes in the bodyside on one side, the underframe and of course, the hood/canopy.

Given the flexibility of our tooling we can also cater for those wagons as built as CDAs from new, as well as those converted from HAA hoppers, giving the modellers a true variety in their wagon rake.

Price And Availability

accurascale

Tempted? At a price of just £79.95 for 3 wagons, and 10% off when you order two packs or more, why wouldn't you be? Remember, you can pre-order direct for no money down, or spread the cost between now delivery via our monthly payment plans via partial.ly for no extra cost!

As you can see, the decoration samples are complete and have been signed off, allowing for production to get underway.

Excited By Our ECC CDA Wagons? Maybe
Consider Our New Class 50 To Haul Them

The launch of Our ECC CDA wagons went down a storm yesterday, with almost 10% of the envisaged run already pre-ordered showing a huge demand for these China Clay icons.

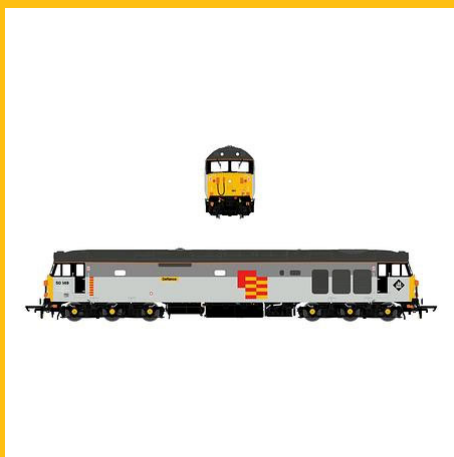

As you know, we love to offer complete trains here at Accurascale, so we can certainly see a Cornish Class 37 in our future, and indeed our Class 50s are also perfect for these wagons, with 50149 in particular being famously paired with the then new hoppers in its sensational Railfreight triple grey livery in the late 1980s.

We have an exciting Class 50 update coming up within the next week, so keep an eye out for it.

50149 is an Accurascale Exclusive model, and available only direct via our website. Our allocation on this model and some of the other classmates are filling fast, so we recommend getting your pre-order in soon to avoid disappointment. It is no money down, after all!

ABOUT THE O GAUGE 4-BAY CYLINDRICAL HOPPER CAR

Until the advent of the covered hopper, bulk commodities like grain and cement were packed in sacks and loaded into boxcars. Loading and unloading was a tedious, time-consuming affair. In the 1930s, a few railroads took the basic coal hopper design and added a roof with loading hatches, enabling bulk commodities to be loaded from the top and unloaded from the bottom. In 1953, Pullman-Standard's 70-ton PS-2 became the first mass-produced covered hopper to be widely owned by U.S. railroads.

But these pioneering covered hoppers had one problem: Like other cars of their time, they were built on a frame with a center sill, or support beam, that ran down the middle. Some of the load would cake or collect on the beam, making it difficult to fully unload the cars. In 1961, American Car and Foundry solved the problem with the first center-flow covered hopper, with its support beams on the outside of the frame and unobstructed, full-width unloading doors. Today's cylindrical hoppers are all descended from that ACF innovation. Our model represents a modern 100-ton, 4-bay car designed for lighter-density loads like grains and plastic pellets; denser commodities are generally shipped in 2- or 3-bay cars.

Oggetto: New Announcement - The 57xx Pannier Tank Family in 00/4mm

accurascale

Holy Duck - It's An AccuraPannier!

accurascale

Following the recent success and reaction to our GWR 78xx Manor Class locomotives, and the feedback following the launch of our GER Buckjumpers, we thought we would combine the love for GWR prototypes with our new found knowledge of tank engines.

This delicious recipe will bring you the ultimate model of one of the most iconic tank locomotives of them all, the GWR 57xx, 67xx and 8750 Class Pannier Tanks!

Why Pannier Tanks?

accurascale

Before anyone says the 'D' word (and we don't mean Duck!), we need to explain where our Pannier Tanks differ to what has gone before.

Like our class 37 project, amongst others, we have done our Panniers in "The Accurascale Way", with lots of variations and detail differences. We have started by 'filling the gaps' and cover variants never before offered in ready-to-run format. This means locomotives with backplate feed (not top feed fitted) feature heavily in our launch range. Another striking variation amongst the contractor built locomotives was the use of rivets for constructing the tanks. Later modifications like the large "8750" cab is also included as is the 67xx sub class that were built without steam heat or vacuum brakes – with relevant pipes and equipment missing from the model as per prototype.

Learn all about the different detail differences on our model, and see the full specification in our launch blog and video by clicking the button below!

Price And Availability

As you can see from our lovely pics, the locomotive is now fully tooled, with first samples being on display on our stand at the 2023 Warley MRC Exhibition at the NEC in Birmingham this weekend. These samples are currently undergoing testing and evaluation by our technical team before they progress to the decoration and production stages.

It's anticipated that the locomotives will arrive in stock in Q1, 2025. Our Pannier Tanks are priced at £139.95 for DC/DCC Ready models, and £239.95 for DCC Sound Fitted models. Locomotives can be pre-ordered via our website for no money down or via monthly instalments at no extra cost, or via our network of local stockists.

A further announcement of an "Accurascale Exclusive" model, available exclusively via the Accurascale website only, will take place in the coming months.

Class 50 Update - First Decorated Samples Arrive

accurascale

It's been all go here at Accurascale Towers, with the final batch of Class 37s, 21 ton mineral wagons and Manors arriving into stock, the first batch of Class 31s in production along with other goodies too and of course, Warley this weekend!

But what about our Warley announcement from last year, the Class 50? Well, it's long overdue an update, and we are delighted to announce that the first of our decorated samples have arrived ahead of the show this weekend, and how fine they look too!

Our first two decorated samples to land especially for the Warley show are 50014 "Warspite" in BR Large Logo livery with black roof, and 50008 "Thunderer" in her current and rather attractive Hanson and Hall grey scheme.

accurascale

As ever, fit and finish of these early samples requires some improvement, but our Accurahoover is shaping up very well indeed and it is always wonderful to reach the decorated milestone to see how paint sits on a locomotive. It also helps to show the depth to detail and mouldings. That removable roof panel needs to sit lower though, and will be addressed on the final models that will land on your layouts! The copper coloured pick ups behind the bogie frames will also be darkened on the final models, and the body will sit right on the chassis!

Our Class 50 will follow in the footsteps of our Class 31 and feature a fully operational roof fan powered by a separate motor. It also looks the part, which always helps!

We will have these pair of beauties on our stand at Warley for a closer look this coming weekend, and the other decorated samples for run one are will be with us in the next couple of weeks for assessment and we will bring you plenty of snaps of them too.

Of course, we are 12 months on from our initial Class 50 announcement and had hoped to be further advanced with deliveries landing about now, but the ongoing semi-conductor shortage coupled with factory backlogs in completing production of other locomotives has slowed our pace somewhat. This has impacted the Class 50s but we are now at a stage where production can commence and will do shortly, once these samples are signed off, with a slot at the factory booked. This means that the revised delivery date for the Class 50 is now Q3 2024. We apologise for this delay but it has been beyond our control.

With the Class 50 production slot now booked and quantities finalised there is only limited stock available left for sale as we cannot now increase the size of the production run. So, if you fancy one, make sure you place your pre-order with your local stockist, or direct via our website very soon before they sell out. Don't forget about our couple of very tasty Accurascale Exclusives too, along with limited editions for Rails of Sheffield and The Fifty Fund.

Mercedes-Benz 200 (W115) (Era IV)

In 1968, Mercedes-Benz introduced the 200-280 series (W115), also known as the 'Strich-8' (slash 8). This scale N car model is an exact replica of the original and has many special details. Characteristic of this car is its sleek lines and great solidity. The diesel models in particular can handle very high mileage and were therefore popular as taxis.

RAILNSCALE Collectibles are hand painted and highly detailed finished models.

Class 89 Update November 2023

We've been busy delivering a lot of new models in recent weeks and months, but what about the next projects?

Well, one of those is the Class 89, our rather wonderful one-off prototype electric model that we are producing in association with Rails of Sheffield.

Back in the summer we showed off the first decorated samples of our Badger, and they certainly got the modelling public salivating at the prospect of one gracing their layout or collection in the near future.

We did at the time outline one particular difficult area that we needed to nail in order to sign off on this model and that was the DCC sound file. The real locomotive is unique as we know, but this extends to its innards, and the 89 as a result sounds like nothing else on the rails.

We had hoped that the real locomotive would be back together and that we could record it in time, but this sadly has not been the case, despite the amazing skills and dedication to the people who are working on her.

As a result of this, we had hung on as long as we can, but now we must defer to historical recordings to replicate the sound for our model. This is easy enough done, but waiting for the real locomotive to be repaired resulted in us missing our production slot at the factory. We also had some work to do with the pantograph, which sits higher than the Class 92s so some fettling was also required which came up in the testing phase.

The good news is that these issues are no longer halting progress of our model, and it is now in production. However, this does mean there has been a further delay, with the finished models now due in stock in Q3, 2024. We sincerely apologise for this delay, but we really wanted the best sound file to match this unique locomotive to really take it to the next level. We're delighted that the sound file we are preparing will sound fantastic though, and will demonstrate it in the new year.

In the meantime production has commenced and we can no longer add any more capacity to the production lines, so remaining stock is limited. If you fancy an 89, now is the time to place your pre-order to avoid disappointment. Order via our friends at Rails of Sheffield, or below!

Excited by our Panniers? Then Check Out Our Other Western Models

accurascale

There is quite the buzz around our latest locomotive announcement; the GWR/BR 57xx, 67xx and 8750 Pannier Tank family of locomotives. Indeed, since we announced them last Thursday, pre-orders have been as strong as when we first announced our Class 37 range and allocations are filling up fast!

Of course, the Panniers are not due for just over a year, but if you want to try some Accurascale awesomeness on your Western themed layout, we do have some nice models in stock for you to sample first.

We have a limited supply of our rather lovely 78xx Manor locomotives in stock. Featuring mostly diecast construction, a wealth of detail and excellent smooth running and haulage capabilities, they are the true bargain of the OO gauge steam world, priced from just £159.99. You'd have to go a long way to find a mostly diecast steam loco for a similar price!

Our gorgeous Siphon G vans are also in stock in a variety of liveries to match your pannier tank (or manor!) retailing at just £54.95 each with 10% off when you buy two or more. Once again, the detail needs to be seen to be believed!

Remember, when you buy direct we do free UK postage and packaging, 10% off when you buy any two wagon packs or coaches (including Siphons!) and 3% cash back off you next order through loyalty points (perfect for the pannier pre-order!)

Let's Go Bananas - SR Vans Production Complete

Great news! The production of our next all-new wagon project, our beautiful Southern Railway/BR Banana vans, is now complete and they have now left the factory!

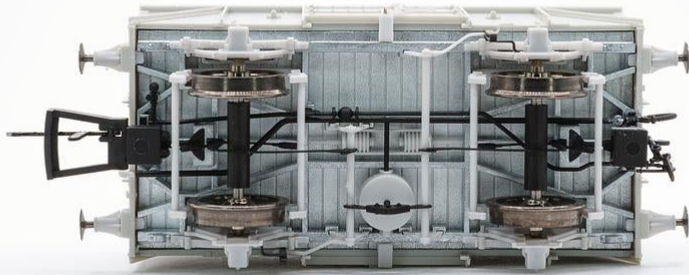

We expect stock to arrive with us at year end, and following customs, QC checks and packing and Christmas holidays, that the models will begin to arrive with customers in early 2024.

Bringing our award winning approach on modern era wagons to pre-nationalisation prototypes, our Banana Vans are our first Southern Railway subject, and feature a wealth of variations, running numbers, individual markings and running numbers to help you form a prototypical length train.

A huge amount of separately applied parts, as well as brass bearings and a diecast chassis for excellent running characteristics elevate these wagons into the "Museum Quality" bracket and will set a new benchmark for Southern Railway wagons.

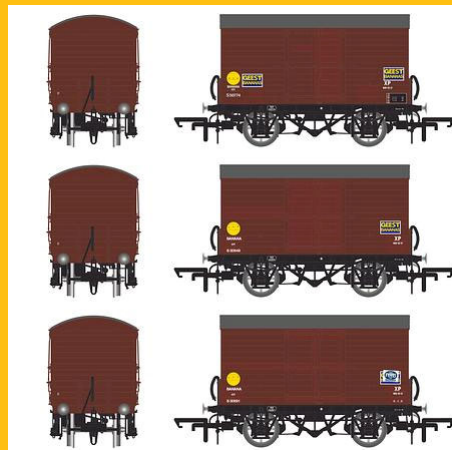

How much detail? As you can see from the unpainted sample below; all of it!

We have a limited supply of stock remaining, including our single pack "Accurascale Exclusive" of our BR Departmental Service Van too.

Each triple pack is priced at £84.95 each and our single pack exclusive is priced at £29.95, with 10% off when you buy any two packs or more, or even mix with our other wagon packs, along with free UK postage and packaging and 3% cash back on every purchase made direct.
